Biographical Sketch/Administrative History

Women's Canadian Club of London: The Women's Canadian Club of London is a literary and patriotic society that was established in 1910 by Fanny Edwards and other prominent London women. Lady Elizabeth Gibbons was its first president. The Women's Canadian Club of London is a member of the National Association of Canadian Clubs. The mandate of the Women's Canadian Club is to strengthen Canadian unity and identity, to encourage the preservation and promotion of Canadian heritage and history, and to increase the knowledge and pride of Canadians in their country. Membership is open to men and women of any age; the club is non-partisan, nonsectarian, and non-profit.

The club's primary focus is a lecture series; members meet monthly between September and April to hear invited speakers discuss issues of national or international importance. Some of the club's other activities have included supporting service projects during the two World Wars, awarding student bursaries, organizing welcoming gatherings for new Canadians after citizenship court sessions, and arranging trips to cultural locations. The Women's Canadian Club of London was incorporated in 1980 and has members throughout southern Ontario.
