Biographical Sketch/Administrative History
Hines' Studio: Henry G. Hines (Harry) was a professional photographer working out of the Hines Studio in London Ontario from 1906 to 1929. He was born in the United States in 1875 and worked as a bartender in St. Louis, Missouri before moving to London, Ontario in 1899 with his wife Gertrude and son William. Upon arriving in London, Hines worked briefly as a bicycle repairman and a street railway conductor. Hines opened his professional photography studio on the East side of London in 1906 and advertised himself as a commercial photographer. Two years later, his son, William Henry (Bill) Hines joined him as a full partner. Although he took private client portraits, he was mainly commissioned by East London businesses and the City of London. The Hines Studiio closed permanently in 1929.

Scope and Content
The collection consists of photographs created by Henry G Hines (Harry) and William H. Hines (Bill) over the course of the operation of his photographic studio in London from 1906-1929. The collection includes original glass plate photographic negatives commissioned by various City of London affiliates, local businesses, private individuals and the photographer's personal photographs. There are images of London with focus in east London mainly of industry, manufacturing and commercial for promotion and Port Stanley scenesAlso included are prints, and copies of Hines' photographs collected by Alan Noon and copy prints and digital images of all photographs created by Noon and given as part of the donation.

Custodial History
The glass plate negatives of Hines' Studio photography were found in a mud basement in the London home of Mrs. Guthrie. Guthrie gave the negatives unconditionally to John K Johannesen in 1951. Johannesen turned the entire collection of glass negatives over to Alan Noon in 1978. Alan Noon, in researching and restoring the glass negatives, added 64 original photographs and 307 copy negatives to the collection. The entire collection, including Noon's additions of copy prints, digitial images and research for his London Regional Art and Historical Museum exhibit and book "East of Adelaide" (based on Hines Studio), was donated to the Western University Archives on September 14, 2006.

Restrictions
Glass plate negatives are closed to the public. Digital copies available on Archives and Special Collections Archives Holdings Database and most photographs have copy prints available for consultation.

Arrangement
Western Archives has arranged the collection according to the subject matter of the images. The photographer's original arrangement has been lost due to the nature of their discovery and rearrangement by previous owners.

Title Notes
Titles are based on the subject matter of each series, subseries and individiual photograph.
