

Science Students' Council

The Science Students' Council (SSC), a Western University organization comprising over fifty student representatives and commissioners, strives to support and advocate for the needs of undergraduate Science students for the Faculty of Science and the Schulich School of Medicine and Dentistry. SSC's dedication to improving the undergraduate experience has been articulated through enhanced access to contemplative study space, an identified need on campus that is in high demand by students. The Science Students' Council is pleased to contribute to this need through a significant donation that will provide tangible support for student academics and has given students an opportunity to take an active role in advocating for and addressing their academic needs.
