Biographical Sketch/Administrative History

Abbot Brothers Carriage: Samuel William Abbot (born 1840) and Hodson Gunning Abbot (born 1841) were brothers from Castlebar, Ireland. Their parents were Alexander Samuel Abbot and Dorinda (née Ruxton) Abbot. They were Wesleyan Methodists. The family moved to London, Ontario, Canada and began Abbot Brother's Carriage Works, manufacturing carriages and delivery wagons. The company was located at 308-316 Dundas Street.

In 1864, Hodson Gunning Abbot married Elizabeth Beattie and they had five children together. Elizabeth died in 1872. He remarried Emily Hunt in 1876 and they had several children before Emily died in 1901. He remarried a final time in 1910 to Eva Mae Francis. Hodson Gunning Abbot and his family lived at the company buildings.

Samuel William Abbot married Maria Louisa Cohoon in 1870. He started the carriage company with his brother but eventually left the company around 1883 to work as a bookkeeper for McCormick Manufacturing Co. After he left, the company mostly went by H.G. Abbott Carriage Company.

In 1883, Hodson Gunning Abbot's son, Frederick A. Abbot (born 1865) also began to work for the carriage company and boarded separately from the family in the company buildings. He worked mostly as a painter. By 1886, he had stopped working for the company in order to attend school and became an elocution professor in 1890.

In 1887, Hodson Gunning Abbot's son, William Abbot (born 1869) became the new painter for the carriage company. By 1900, he had become the manager. After Hodson Gunning Abbot's death in 1921, he took over the company.

The company ceased operations in 1925.
