ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Over the years, this project has involved the talents and dedication of numerous individuals from Research and Instructional Services, The D.B. Weldon Library.

Thanks to Ann Morris and John Tyndall for their many hours of meticulous work -- from the initial scoping and checking of entry contents, through verification of editorial changes, to data entry in creating the first electronic draft. Thank you for believing your efforts would ultimately bear fruit, and for your unfailing encouragement.

Thanks to Barry Taylor, who was with us at the beginning of this endeavour, but not at the end. His contributions are gratefully acknowledged, his presence ever missed.

Thanks to Sharon Campbell for her attention and care in producing the first paper copy of the revision.

Thanks to Jennifer Robinson for her inspired suggestion that the original electronic files be imported as PDF documents. Her leadership and enthusiasm succeeded in catapulting the first paper revision of the Guide into the 21st century.

Thanks to Quang Ly, who provided invaluable assistance in realizing Jennifer's vision, while adding a personal touch of his own brilliance with the creation of the hyper-linked index and call number entries.

Thanks to Ian Whyte for the innovation and technical expertise that contributed to the initial design of first electronic version of the Guide back in 1994.

Finally, thanks and recognition is due the authors of the original 1983 edition: Jerry Mulcahy, Martin Ship, and Judy Heinzen. They provided the solid foundation upon which the rest of us built.

INTRODUCTION

The D.B. Weldon Library maintains a large collection of research materials in microform. This Guide is intended to improve access to research sets, which for reasons of format or indexing may be difficult to use. Included are approximately 175 catalogued research sets or collections. As a general rule, individual monographs in microform (i.e. not parts of series) have been excluded from this publication, as have coded government publications research sets, and individual newspaper and periodical titles.

The following information is supplied for each entry: title; publisher; call number; holdings; format; description of contents; bibliographical access; and how to locate an item within a research set.

Entries are arranged by Library of Congress call number; the Guide also includes indexes by title and subject.

Since new titles are regularly added to our holdings, this Guide will never be complete. We welcome any suggestions for additions and/or corrections (emantz@uwo.ca).

Title:	CANADIAN INSTITUTE FOR HISTORICAL MICROREPRODUCTIONS [CIHM/ICMH] (Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions)
Call Number:	DBWMFH All items have been individually catalogued.
Holdings:	Complete
Description of Contents:	The Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions (CIHM/ICMH) was established in 1978, at the request of Canadian scholars and librarians. Its mandate was to identify, locate, and microfiche a retrospective Canadiana collection, to be as comprehensive as possible, which would serve to improve access to printed Canadiana by bringing together fragmented collections, making rare and scarce materials more widely available, and ensuring the preservation of early Canadiana, whether held in Canada or abroad. The Early Canadiana research collection has been developed in three distinct phases to date (April 2001): Phase I - Pre-1900 Monographs (complete); Phase II - Pre-1900 Periodicals and Annuals (complete); Phase III - Monographs 1900-1920 (complete). Phase I of the project was limited to monographic materials, and includes only materials with imprints dating pre-1900. The collection covers all relevant items printed in Canada, as well as items printed outside Canada which had Canadian content or were written by Canadians: monographs, pamphlets, leaflets, playbills and broadsides, catalogues of books, articles for sale or commercial products, offprints, and non-Canadian government publications with Canadian content. Monographs form the majority of the collection. Phase II focussed on serials, and contains annuals and periodicals to 1900, Canadian imprints only. Phase III began in 1994, and involved the production of microfiche of Canadian imprints from the period 1900 to 1920. This collection contains monographs and pamphlets, with primarily Canadian imprints. A selected bibliography of Canadian authors' works published outside Canada was also reproduced. Excluded from the collection are Canadian federal, provincial, and territorial government publications. Also excluded are journals and newspapers, manuscript materials, engraved materials, currency, topographical views, portraits, and caricatures.
Bibliographic Access:	Analytics for the collection have been or will be loaded to provide access by title, author, and subject using the Library Catalogue. Call Number:	DBWMFM D 799.G7B75 1979a
Holdings:	Four reels
Description of Contents:	In the early 1940s, the Ministry of Information established a department of Home Intelligence in order to discover the attitudes and evaluate the opinions of people on the home front. One can learn a great deal from this remarkable collection about the rumours that were prevalent, about the attitudes of civilians toward military developments and the bombings, and, as well, about the general concerns of the people during World War II. In some cases the material is rather anecdotal and impressionistic and in others the information is more analytical - the result of specific inquiries by the "Wartime Social Survey".

Description of Contents:	The Gerritsen Collection is generally regarded as the most important single source for the study of international women's history and the feminist movement. The collection was begun in the late nineteenth century by Dr. Aletta Jacobs (1854-1929), the first woman university student and woman doctor in the Netherlands. Dr. Jacobs was also the founder of the first birth control clinic in the world (1878), a leader in the Dutch and international women's suffrage movements for fifty years, and an ardent pacifist as well. She and her husband, Dr. Carl Gerritsen, had the resources to travel extensively, collecting monographs and periodicals relating to their social and political interests. During the twenty-five years of her medical practice in Amsterdam, Dr. Jacobs built up a collection of approximately 2,000 volumes, with many French, German, Italian, and older English works. Since Dr. Jacobs was a active suffragist, the collection is particularly rich in materials dealing with women's rights. In addition, topics included are the nature and role of women, the historical and legal status of women, prostitution, the education of girls and women, biography and autobiography, and secondary materials on women writers, marriage and the family, employment of women, women and religion, and women's voluntary associations. To a lesser extent, topics such as divorce, women in politics, women's reformatories, and women as composers, musicians, and artists are represented. Titles are in English, German, French, Dutch, Italian, Danish, Norwegian, Swedish, Latin, Greek, Spanish, Portuguese, Polish, Hungarian, Russian, Czechoslovakian, and Arabic. Titles from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries are well represented, with a lesser representation of titles from the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries.

A series of symbols (see page eleven of the Index) refers the user to other entries in the Index, or to related illustrations or citations. Note. The Library's copy of Bartsch's Le peintre graveur is not the 1803-1821 edition upon which many of the illustrations are based. Title:	BUTE BROADSIDES IN THE HOUGHTON LIBRARY, HARVARD UNIVERSITY (Research Publications Inc.)
Call Number:	DBWMFM PR 1101.B87 1979
Holdings:	One reel
Description of Contents:	This collection consists of approximately 500 broadsides from the seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries that were collected by the third Marquess of Bute, John Patrick Crichton-Stuart (1847-1900). Many of the items in this collection of ephemera are extremely rare. Since the broadsides touch on virtually every aspect of English life, those studying the literature, politics, or social history of the period will find many interesting documents in this collection. Some of the broadsides are prose pieces and others are in verse; many of the works are anonymous, but some were written by the relatively famous. Many interesting subjects ranging from adultery to workhouses are discussed in the broadsides.
Bibliographic Access:	DBWREF PR 1101.B87 1979 Index Bute broadsides in the Houghton Library, Harvard University: Guide and index to the microfilm collection
How to Locate an item in Set:	Refer to the printed guide and index listed above. Broadside in the guide are listed alphabetically. A full bibliographic description is provided, and each broadside has been assigned an original Bute number. There is also a subject index. Using either the guide or the index, it is easy to locate an item on the microfilm where the broadsides have been reproduced in numerical sequence in the following order: A1-198, B1-153, C1-95. Thus the broadside bearing the Bute number A1 is the first item on the film; the broadside C95 is the last item. The Bute numbers appear in the lower left corner of each broadside. Note. Although one can quickly find the items on the microfilm, one curious fact about the printed guide and index should be noted. The guide is arranged in alphabetical order; the subject index, however, provides only a Bute number. Thus, while one can go directly to the microfilmed broadside from either the guide or the index, one cannot easily find items in the guide by using the subject index.

Call Number:	DBWMFH UA 648.G74
Holdings:	Eighty-eight fiche
Description of Contents:	The Ministry of Munitions was created in England in 1915, after it was recognized that the private enterprise system was not equal to the demands placed upon it by the Great War (1914-1918). Subsequently, the Ministry exerted control over almost all aspects of British society. In 1916, an official history of the Ministry was begun, as it was felt that an exact record would be useful in the event of a future war, and as it was assumed that the establishment of such a powerful body would have tremendous consequences. This microform reproduction of the original twelve-volume History of the Ministry of Munitions is an invaluable primary source that will be of interest to military, political, social, and economic historians.

XIV, 1944, pp. 185-190 (DBWPER HC 10.E4).
